0.0	0.0	West Yellowstone Entrance	Yellowstone's volcanic history has been dramatically powerful - and its future could match the past. Yellowstone sits on a volcanic hot spot. Three times in its history Yellowstone has exploded with such power and fury that the world's weather changed. The scale of these eruptions was so immense that it is almost incomprehensible.	205.6	330.9

2.7	4.3	Turn Out	A small turnout over looking river, large burn area from the fires of 1988. In April and May, Yellowstone received higher-than normal rainfall. But by June, the greater Yellowstone area was experiencing a severe drought. Forest fuels grew progressively drier, and the early summer thunderstorms produced lightning without rain. The summer of 1988 turned out to be the driest in the park's recorded history. By July 15, only 8,500 acres had burned in the entire greater Yellowstone area. Within a week, fires within the park alone encompassed more nearly 99,000 acres, and by the end of the month, dry fuels and high winds combined to make the larger fires nearly uncontrollable. On the worst single day, August 20, 1988, tremendous winds pushed fire across more than 150,000 acres. Throughout August and early September, some park roads and facilities were closed to the public.	202.9	326.5

The cows and calves oftentimes travel in large groups of a hundred or more during the summer months, while the males tend to travel by themselves or in very small groups, feeding on grasses and tree twigs. During the summer months, Elk can usually be seen in the Lamar Valley and in the northwest sector of the Park.	193.1	310.7

19.8	31.9	Nez Perce Creek	For thousands of years the valleys, prairies, mountains, and plateaus of the inland northwest have been home to the Nimiipuu or Nez Perce people. Today, the 38 sites of Nez Perce National Historical Park are scattered across the states of Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Montana and have been designated to commemorate the stories and history of the Nimiipuu and their interaction with explorers, fur traders, missionaries, soldiers, settlers, gold miners, and farmers who moved through or into the area. There are two Visitor Centers, one at Park Headquarters in Spalding, Idaho and the other at Big Hole National Battlefield, Montana. Both facilities are staffed year around by personnel who can answer your questions about the local area, the Nez Perce People and the War of 1877.	185.8	299.0

Most of the park is backcountry and managed as wilderness. Over 1,100 miles (1770 km) of trails are available for hiking. However, there are dangers inherent in wilderness: unpredictable wildlife, changing weather conditions, remote thermal areas, cold water lakes, turbulent streams, and rugged mountains with loose, 'rotten' rock. Visiting wilderness means experiencing the land on its terms. If you choose to explore and enjoy the natural wonders of Yellowstone, there is no guarantee of your safety. Be prepared for any situation. Carefully read all backcountry guidelines and regulations.	177.4	285.5

Built during the winter of 1903-04, the Old Faithful Inn was designed by Robert C. Reamer, who wanted the asymmetry of the building to reflect the chaos of nature. The lobby of the hotel features a 65-foot ceiling, a massive rhyolite fireplace, and railings made of contorted lodgepole pine. Wings were added to the hotel in 1915 and 1927, and today there are 327 rooms available to guests in this National Historic Landmark.	175.7	282.7

The west side of the lake flows into the Firehole drainage and, eventually, the Atlantic throughout the year. The east side, during spring, flows toward the Snake River drainage and the Pacific.	174.8	281.3

Road Map Travel Guide

46.9	75.5	Yellowstone Lake	Sitting in the bowl of a 650,000 year old volcanic caldera, Yellowstone Lake is a wild and mysterious phenomena. The lake covers 136 square miles, one of the largest freshwater lakes at such a high altitude in the world. It has 110 miles of shoreline and depths up to 400 feet. Evidence shows that this massive lake once drained south into the Snake River. It is populated with cutthroat trout, a species found west of the continental divide, and connected to rivers that flow into the Pacific. At some point, after Yellowstone Lake was populated with cutthroat, the lake 'tipped' with the north bank becoming lower than the south bank, spilling it into what became the Yellowstone River.	158.7	255.4
49.4	79.5	Grant Village	Elev 7770 The Grant Visitor Center is located on the shore of the West Thumb of Yellowstone Lake one mile off of the main park road at Grant Village Junction. The visitor center and development are named for President Ulysses S. Grant, eighteenth president of the United States, who signed the bill creating Yellowstone National Park in 1872. The facility was constructed during the 1970s and, along with the entire Grant development, was and is a controversial Yellowstone development due to its location in prime grizzly bear habitat (the area is the location of several major cutthroat trout spawning streams).	156.2	251.4

59.0	94.9	Lewis Falls	Lewis Falls is hard to miss when you enter or depart the park from the South Entrance. A short distance south of Lewis Lake, the impressive 29-foot falls plunges toward the highway. Do take time to stop and observe this waterfall and then explore the way the Lewis River cuts its impressive canyon to the south. We often spot ouzels and other water loving birds in the stream below the falls. We especially like Lewis Falls in the winter, when mounds of soft snow are often perched on the trees alongside the waterfall.	146.6	235.9

With its pristine watersheds, abundant wildlife and immense wildlands, the Bridger-Teton National Forest comprises a large part of the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem - the largest intact ecosystem in the lower 48 United States. Offering nearly 1.2 million acres of designated Wilderness, over 30,000 miles of road and trail and thousands of miles of unspoiled rivers and streams, the Bridger-Teton offers something for everyone. We encourage you to visit this beautiful landscape and experience this unique piece of American Heritage.	129.8	208.9

92.1	148.2	Jenny Lake Turnoff	the one-way road reaches Jenny Lake. For understandable reasons, this place is highly popular; the road in summer is crowded with vehicles. Even so, if you desire solitude amid the grandeur, you can generally find it. Leave your car in a parking area and walk down to the shore. Instantly you are isolated from the world of automobiles. If you have more time, catch the boat that usually leaves three times an hour from the south end of the lake. Near the parking area you will find the Jenny Lake Visitor Center, rest rooms, ranger station, a store, and a campground for tents only.	113.5	182.7

When the Snake passes over the dam out of Jackson Lake, it wanders east toward Moran Junction, creating Oxbow Bend along the way, and then becomes a braided stream that runs south-southwest until it exits the park just south of the Moose Visitor Center. South of Jackson, the Snake speeds up, merges with the Hoback River, and becomes a whitewater stream as it heads westward toward Idaho. Waters from the Snake eventually join the Columbia and pour into the Pacific Ocean at Astoria, Oregon.	100.0	160.9
